

German Politics and Society

Volume 30, Issue 1

Dear Colleague,

Berghahn Journals is pleased to announce the publication of German Politics and Society, Volume 30 Issue 1, a special issue assessing the consequences of the 1999 German Citizenship Act. Articles examine the extent to which the law represented a paradigm shift for German immigration policy, the degree to which it has brought Germany into the European mainstream with regard to citizenship, the law's successes and failures as a tool for integrating immigrants, and the extent to which the law has transformed Germany's political culture.
